The art of race navigation in the age of computers and navigation software is very different to even a decade ago. While a multitude of books exist on coastal and celestial navigation, very few can be found that deal with the specialist area of race navigation. This book fills that void. It is a practical, hands-on book that provides detailed instruction and tips on Race Navigation using Expedition, one of the most widely used race navigation software packages available today.

Information is provided on setting up a navigation station, deck screens, instrument calibration, accessing weather information, short course racing, starting, offshore routing, tracking the opposition, sail charts, and performance analysis. Web links are provided throughout the book to allow the reader to visit the relevant web sites as they read through the book. Recommended reading and key web sites are provided at the end of the book.

The book is structured so that it can be read from start to finish in a logical progression. Nonetheless, it is considered more likely that readers will be looking for advice on a specific function or feature within Expedition. For this reason the chapters also try to stand on their own where possible.

An absolute 'Must Read'
By Wayne Millar
I have been fortunate enough to sail with Will Oxley in offshore racing, including some Sydney-Hobart's. He has always proven himself to be a consummate professional over the years and as such, it is only natural that he has emerged as a prominent expert in the field of race navigation.

I highly recommend this book to anyone doing any form of offshore racing, not just the budding navigator. It will certainly help all levels of crew understand the decisions made by the 'back of the boat'.

Most up to date read on sailing and technology
By cdouillet
This book is a great read for anyone who wishes to learn more about weather, navigation and sailing in general. From the sunday cruisers with an interest in technology to the pro ocean racers, all will learn something. I would event recommend it to all the "virtual regatta" sailors!

Extremely Valuable
By Anderson Reggio

Regardless of the level at which you compete, if you have instruments on your boat there is value found for you in this book. Extremely comprehensive and thorough. Well deserving of the accolades it is currently in receipt of in the racing world.
