Questions and intrigue

By Angela Treat Lyon

I love how Nancy Kress writes. I'm often compelled to write down a phrase here and there that I like so I can refer to it later. She always writes about compelling topics woven within her very human stories - never moralistic or pedantic; always questioning. And I like how she might leave a story feeling - at first - like there's more to write, but the question has been answered, so there's no need to write more. Intriguing.

Really is the best!

By Elin Wyn

It's Nancy Kress! Stories she's selected from across her career. A number of the stories I read, and realized that I remembered the plot after years - just hadn't realized so many were by her. A real master of the craft.
